DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is in response to applicant's response filed on March 19, 2007. Claims 34-39, 55-68, 71-74, 76-79, 91-92, 95-110 are pending in the present application.

2. EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT/COMMENT

Applicant has agreed to the following amendment during his telephonic interview with the Examiner held on March 29, 2007:

In the claims:

Claims 1-20, 30-33, 40-54 and 85 are cancelled.

The Interview summary is enclosed.

REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

3. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

This invention relates to keypads in which output keystrokes are determined from individual switch activation and from the combined activation of adjacent switches. Claim 55 identifies the uniquely distinct feature of the keypad comprising: an array of discrete snap elements extending between the cover and the substrate and spacing the cover from the substrate, the snap elements each located between two adjacent independent key regions and adapted to resiliently collapse as a non-linear response to local pressure against the exposed cover surface to provide tactile feedback in response to pressure against both elevated key regions and non-elevated key regions, wherein the snap elements are arranged to provide a substantially equal tactile feedback in response to activating both elevated key regions and non-elevated key regions. As such, claim 55 requires arranging snap elements to provide a substantially equal tactile feedback in response to activating both elevated key regions and non-elevated key regions. While the closest prior art, Krishnan [US 6,377,685 B1, Fuhrmann et al [US 7,092,520 B2], and Philipp [US 6,535,200 B2] each teach a multi-purpose keypad key arrangement, Krishnan using a keypad key arrangement having a positive tactile feedback, Fuhrmann et al using snap-in-place releasable connection, and Philipp using a multi-electrode capacitive position sensor functions; none of the prior art teach or suggest arranging snap elements to provide a substantially equal tactile feedback in response to activating both elevated key regions and non-elevated key regions. As such, the prior art, either singularly or in combination, fail to anticipate or render the above underlined limitation obvious. Therefore, claim 55 is indicated allowable. Claims 71 and 95 are essentially similar to claim 55 and are indicated allowable.

Claim 34 recite an electronic device and limitations for the following: “a flexible cover disposed above the substrate and carrying a second array of spaced apart, conductive trace elements, said first and second arrays together forming a coordinate system, the cover separated from the substrate by an array of resilient, collapsible elements and having an exposed, continuous surface; the first and second arrays of trace elements forming a capacitive grid responsive to presence of a digit of an operator on the surface of the cover.” The prior art of record does not teach these limitations. Therefore, Claim 34 is indicated allowable.

Claim 76 recites a keypad and limitations for the following: “at least one continuous, elongated snap element extending adjacent at least three key regions of one row of key regions, between the cover and the substrate and spacing the cover from the substrate, the snap element adapted to resiliently collapse as a non-linear response to local pressure against the exposed cover surface to provide tactile feedback of keypad operation.” The prior art of record does not teach these limitations. Therefore, Claim 76 is indicated allowable.

New search updates reveal no prior art that these teach these limitations in the context of the claims.

4. The claims have been re-numbered as follows:

CLAIMS NUMBER (ORIGINAL)	CLAIMS NUMBER (FINAL)
34-39	1-6
55-68	7-20
91-92	21-22
71-74	23-26
76-79	27-30
95-110	31-46

Claim no. 55 along with figure number 29 will be published in the Official Gazette.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
